MAJOR RECENT ANNOUNCEMENTS

- FiberTEK Insulation is building a 300,000-square-foot manufacturing plant southwest of Nephi. The company will bring $20 million in capital investment and roughly 100 high quality jobs to the area. FiberTEK hopes to be operational in 2008.¹
- Rocky Mountain Power has fired up the second stage of the Currant Creek $345 million natural gas fired facility. The Juab County power plant is capable of producing enough electricity to light up nearly 270,000 Utah homes. The second phase includes the addition of a steam turbine powered by waste heat given off by the two natural gas powered turbines. The second phase increased the plant's generating capacity by 245 MW.²
- Barnes Bullets recently held its groundbreaking ceremony for its new manufacturing facility in Mona. The company is building a new 25-yard, 100-yard and 300-yard underground shooting range site. The company will also be constructing a 60,000-square-foot facility with offices, lab space and a manufacturing component. The new plant will be located 40 miles south of the company's current Lindon facility.³
