UTAH’S ECONOMIC LANDSCAPE:

The State of Utah has been recognized year after year as having one of the strongest economies in the country. Despite the existing economic challenges in front of both the globally community and at home, the fundamentals of the Utah economy remain solid and provide the foundation for our economic expansion. Some of these fundamentals include:

- Utah’s world exports have increased 45% year over year since June 2009 and Utah was the only state to increase exports in 2009.
- The Zions Bank Small Business Index, which measures conditions from a 100 point baseline for small businesses around the State, was 106.9 as of July 2010 up from 103.4 in May 2010.
- Utah is one of eight states with a AAA bond rating as of April 2010.
- As of Sept 2010 Utah’s unemployment rate is 7.4%, well below the national average of 9.6%.
- Utah companies competed for and won a record-setting $500 million in government/military contracts, equating to 10,000 jobs created or retained.
- Utah’s employment forecasts shows that by 2011, construction will be the fastest growing sector with a 4.2% growth rate, followed by professional and business services with a 2.67% gain, and a 2.38% increase in manufacturing.
